J.LO'S marriage cracks

He has jealous fits if his wife even looks at another man, yet Marc Anthony is still in touch with the 'love of his life' – his ex!

Just three months into Jennifer Lopez's latest marriage, her husband Marc Anthony has revealed they've already begun to quarrel.

The admission came at a surprise 36th birthday party J.Lo had arranged for Marc in New York. Referring to her as "my wife" for the first time, Marc told family and friends

"we've been fighting", and explained he'd been angry with J.Lo for being inattentive and "distracted" in recent weeks. He was totally unaware she was preoccupied with organising his celebration.

A source confirmed that just days before the party, Marc had begun shouting at J.Lo mid-flight from Las Vegas to New York. "He was like, 'What's your problem?'" and they burst into a brawl," the source says.

But there's one woman who's not surprised there's been tension between the newlyweds. Claudette Lail, 26, knows Marc intimately – they used to be engaged and are still in regular contact.

She warns J.Lo that while Marc can be demanding and possessive in a relationship, >

Model and aspiring actress Claudette (left, and below with singer Marc in 1996) says her ex-boyfriend pursued her even when he was married to Dayanara (right, and below with their kids Cristian and Ryan). Claudette claims Marc says he's still in love with her, and is in contact, despite his very recent marriage to J.Lo.

he's also a love cheat. "He cheated on me and it wouldn't surprise me if he cheats again," Claudette recently told a friend from her acting class at the Ivana Chubbuck Studios in Los Angeles, where she's trying to pursue the acting dream she says Marc made her set aside.

She adds, "He definitely has a wandering eye and is attracted to power. If Marc decides he doesn't need Jennifer at some point, I think he'll cheat on her."

"He's the possessive and jealous type and probably seethes every minute they're apart, and wonders if J.Lo's on the phone to someone else."

Claudette was an 18-year-old Elite agency model when she and Marc started dating in July 1996. They were engaged within three months - he gave her a three-carat platinum and silver ring. But in return, he made Claudette give up work with top designer Narciso Rodriguez as it took her away from him.

"Marc was getting jealous. He wanted all of my time. There was no way I could go out to dinner with friends or travel on my own or do anything, and I was very young."

"It was all about massaging him at night because he was so tired or being by his side when he watched TV. We'd fight over that. He'd say 'You don't need to work, you have everything. You're not being supportive.'"

Claudette gives the impression it didn't go both ways. She claims one lonely night in November 1997, Marc didn't return to their New York apartment.

"Claudette says Marc always came home to her at night, except for one night, when he was shooting a video," her friend explains. "The next day, she was frantic and called Marc's brother, who told Claudette that Marc didn't want to wake her so he'd slept on his couch."

"But later that day, Claudette told Marc's bodyguard she was miserable and suspected Marc

Marc. On their first date, he borrowed a car from his ex-girlfriend Debbie Rosado - the mother of his daughter Arianna - but had to cut the date short to return it. She says Marc even used his pet name for her, Clodie, in a dedication on his album Contra La Corriente.

The friend continues, "Claudette told me he's the kind of guy who works hard to make a woman feel protected and loved. He has a fiery temper but at the same time is very passionate and romantic. Marc was always telling her how much he loved her and how he'd die for her. But, physically, it was all was sleeping with someone else. The bodyguard felt sorry for her and quietly told her it was true - Marc had spent the night in a hotel with another woman."

'If Marc continues to ring his ex-fiancée Claudette, maybe it's J.Lo who should be jealous'

Claudette told her friend, "I was completely heartbroken. I thought I was going to marry him. I found out who the other woman was - a model in his video. He told me he had great chemistry with her but that's all."

Claudette still has fond memories of her early days with about his own needs. She said she didn't care because she'd completely bought into the fantasy world he'd created."

The illusion ended when she confronted Marc about his cheating. She fled to family in the Dominican Republic. Marc offered her a car and an apartment, but she rejected his peacemaking attempts. When she returned to the US, he apologised for hurting her, told her he wanted them to be together... then asked for the engagement ring back.

"Claudette says she found out that while Marc was trying to win her back, he'd started to date Dayanara Torres, who was then very popular in the Latin community as a former Miss Universe. She was heartbroken all over again, and confused."

"She stopped talking to him, but after Marc married Dayanara in 1999 and had a child with her, he started to pursue Claudette again. She claims she was contacted by a mutual friend, who told her 'Marc really misses you and wants to talk.' So Claudette agreed to meet."

"Marc was crying, saying how much he needed her and that she was the love of his life. But Claudette couldn't believe he was married and saying all these things. She said there was no way she'd get back together with him."

Claudette's now madly in love with her current boyfriend. And even married to J.Lo, Marc's still in touch with her.

"He doesn't talk about J.Lo except to say he's happy about his personal life, but he won't mention her by name," says the friend. "He says he's happy and very much in love. But he still tells a mutual friend Claudette will always be the love of his life. If Marc continues to ring Claudette, maybe it's J.Lo who should be jealous."
